Central society for veterinary medicine.

On Dec. 17, 1938, The Central society of s.e. for veterinary medicine (sometimes called Central veterinary medical association) founded in 1889, and the Japanese society of veterinary science, founded in 1922, were incorporated by a resolution at a general meeting of the two societies. The new society thus formed to be known as the Japanese society of veterinary science. Accordingly the official publications of the two former societies were discontinued. -cf. Announcement in Japanese
